To Whom It May Concern:

Last year at this time, while my husband and I watched a myriad of commercials, most of which were commercializing on this sacred Christmas season; we were most surprised at one from Tom Monson. Mr. Monson was clearly not afraid to wish those in his television audience a very Merry Christmas. In closing his commercial, he said those wonderful words that some of us remember from Red Skeleton; "and God Bless". Those of us who still believe in God and who do not bow to what is considered 'politically correct' appreciate his integrity.

I remember saying at the time, that if we were ever to need the services of a realtor, that Tom Monson would surely be the man whom we would turn to.

This summer, we decided to take advantage of the real estate market and purchase a second home in the Rogue Valley. We found Tom's website and contacted him through the website.

Tom was every bit the man he claimed to be. He was honest and above board from the start and always looked out for our best interests. There were times when things would not go well and I wanted to give up trying to find just the right piece of real estate, but Tom would always remind me of "Who was in charge", meaning that if the Man upstairs meant it to be, that it would happen. We made two different offers on places that we thought were 'just right', only to find that they were priced just above our budget. Just when we were about to give up on our search, Tom found us a wonderful place that we could afford.

In this world of Dog-eat-dog and few morals, it was so nice to work with a man who not only claimed to be a Christian, but also practiced what he preached.

Thank you Tom for your time and most of all for your patience. We couldn't have done it without you.
